Spotify says its global paid subscriber base reaches 10 Million

Online music streaming service Spotify said on Wednesday its global paid subscriber base had swelled to 10 million as speculation mounts the Swedish start-up could be gunning for a share listing. Spotify, which has since 2008 paid out over $1 billion dollars to rights holders, has benefited from soaring demand for streamed music.

“We’ve had an amazing year, growing from 20 markets to 56 as people from around the world embrace streaming music. 10 million subscribers is an important milestone for both Spotify and the entire music industry,” said Daniel Ek, CEO and founder.

“We’re widening our lead in the digital music space and will continue to focus on getting everyone in the world to listen to more music.”

It saw its paid subscriber base jump from a previous 6 million, as reported on its website, thanks to strong demand for songs from the likes of Eminem - the music services most-streamed artist of all time - and Rihanna, its most-streamed female artist. Avicii’s hit song “Wake Me Up” is its most streamed song of all time.

Strong Investors sentiment and buoyant tech shares have fuelled speculation by bankers and industry players about a possible listing of the firm which raised $250 million in a funding round in November, making it one of the world’s most richly capitalized start-ups.

It now has more than 40 million active users in 56 markets up from a previous 24 million.

CLASSICS DUE OUT DECEMBER 2

(Columbia Records; New York, NY - November 20, 2014)
She & Him - comprised of Zoey Deschanel and M. Ward - announce the release of their gravity-defying new video for "Stay Awhile" off their upcoming album Classics, hitting December 2 via Columbia Records. She & Him both honor the Dusty Springfield classic and make the song their own with the refreshing clip, helmed by noted directorial team CANADA (whose video credits include Phoenix, Oh Land, Scissor Sisters, Battles, Justice, Vaccines, among others).

The video depicts the ever-stoic M. Ward strumming a special brand of guitar, while Deschanel dances around the warmth of domestic life in an era-appropriate house, proving she can do it all, yes, even levitate. And what dips! In honor of the full-bodied sound of the original classics, She & Him recorded the album live, including full brass, strings, piano, bass, guitar, drums and flute on their rendition of Springfield's classic melody. Ward's guitar shimmers and flows beside Deschanel's whole-hearted and warm vibrato, weaving a hearty live version that allows for the spontaneity that captured the spirit of the songs in their truest form.
